iLEAP's quarterly newsletter

A letter from our Executive Director:

Greetings and welcome to the first edition of our new newsletter, the DROP!

First and foremost thank you for making 2013 a wonderful year so far. With your partnership, we continue to ignite more hope and transformation around the world. As the number of iLEAP graduates grows, there are new and exciting opportunities to identify and strengthen regional networking hubs for the iLEAP community. In February, we convened all of our graduates from Central America for a two-day retreat in Guatemala. Three groups of iLEAP graduates—13 women leaders—came together to share their stories of leadership and change, and to deepen the interpersonal relationships that sustain their work. In May, we traveled to Japan and brought together the graduates of our Social Innovation Forum: Japan and witnessed the exciting social transformation taking place in Japan led by our 40 graduates. The emergence of these national and regional networks of change leaders is very promising and we are investing even more time into building and sustaining their growth. Later in 2013, we plan to also gather graduates in Africa and South and Southeast Asia to advance network building in those regions as well.

Apart from the continued growth of our programming, perhaps the most striking change is our new logo and brand. Our brand mark represents the idea that our smaller parts equal a larger whole. The circles in the logo remind us that as a member of the iLEAP global community, you are an integral component. You contribute to the ideas, individuals, voices and communities that come together to equal change, transformation, and a larger global community. You contribute to the ripples of change that follow our graduates and participants. So, thank you for being a part of our work and allowing us to embrace this design in such meaningful ways!

Keeping you connected to iLEAP's work is a priority and I am excited to report that very soon we will also be unveiling a new website. The new website will make it easier for you to stay up-to-date, connect with iLEAP and connect with our graduates and read stories about their inspiring work leading change in their home communities.

In global community,

Britt Yamamoto

YOUR SUPPORT INSPIRES SOCIAL INNOVATION IN JAPAN!

SOCIAL INNOVATION FORUM:

In May, iLEAP brought together the graduates of our Social Innovation Forum: Japan (SIFJ) for activities focused on reconnection and to establish new relationships across cohorts. Two years after the devastation of the Great Tohoku earthquake, while the challenges remain large in Japan, there is reason for hope and optimism as our 40 iLEAP SIFJ graduates continue to lead change and innovation throughout the country. The May trip also involved social leaders from Seattle who joined Japanese Delegates for a rich cross-pollination and dialogue about social change and leadership. The SIFJ is the collective creation of hundreds of supporters and contributors from all over the United States and Japan, and it represents a powerful response to the events of March 11, 2011: together we can re-imagine and re-create the future of Tohoku and Japan.

You are part of a global community that impacts thousands of lives around the globe. Your support has allowed iLEAP to make social innovation in Japan and Seattle more impactful than ever.

NEW PROGRAM:

In April, iLEAP launched a new program aimed at young working professionals: Social Innovation in Seattle for Young Professionals (YP). Six young professionals from Japan came to Seattle for 1 week to explore social innovation, reflect on their own personal career path and goals, and experience how local young professionals, businesses and nonprofits in Seattle engage change. The shorter time period of YP complements our longer programs offered throughout the year. If you would like to connect with our YP participants during their time in Seattle, please email info@iLEAP.org.

First, I want to thank all of you who support iLEAP and make it such a wonderful community and powerful program. Through my experience in iLEAP, I have much more clarity about my passion in life--to empower young people to make positive choices that will enable them to live powerful, productive lives. In Uganda, many young people do not see that they have the capacity to build their dreams and strengthen their communities. I started Teen Empowerment Uganda (TEU) to provide a space where young people can interact, discuss topics such as "changing bodies" and HIV/AIDS with peers and allow them to see themselves as vital community members.

What I learned during the iLEAP program is that it is important to make an organization sustainable and to market TEU's mission. I have been so grateful for the ideas, moral support, technical and strategic guidance that I have received from iLEAP so far. I have also realized that I have to adapt what I have learned to the setting in Uganda. Here, compliance issues can limit room for innovation and creativity and I have to think around obstacles. I would love to partner more with U.S. based organizations with similar missions to learn from their experiences, adopt what is relevant and customize to our own setting.

I am determined to make TEU a model organization in Uganda and to have the programs available to all youth. To help gain traction, I have this idea of starting a Marching Band with the youth to not only give them a powerful new way to interact, but to draw attention and rally the entire community around youth empowerment.

Hopefully, someday soon, we will be able to play you a song.

FUTURE HOPE:

Build a center where teens can interact and 100's more can participate.

15 TEENS participated in "one-on-one counseling" to address social stigmas associated with HIV/AIDS

12+ volunteer/service learning projects to improve community sanitation and hygiene

FUTURE HOPE:

Start a teen Marching Band as a positive activity and as a marketing tool to create awareness.

127 TEENS Participated in TEU mentoring programs

60 ADOLESCENTS participated in "changing bodies" peer group talk (talking about sexual issues in Uganda is taboo, so these talks allowed Teens to gain proper understanding of why and how their bodies grow)

INDIVIDUAL

ORGANIZATION/NETWORKS

6 SCHOOLS participated in TEU's Basic Needs Assessment to help identify critical factors that limit success such as student lack of self esteem, poor parenting, poor nutrition, and cases of abusive/negative teachers

100's of parents, teachers and administrators coming together positively to support youth empowerment.

1 OFFICE which allowed for more credibility, visibility, and physical space

3 VOLUNTEER STAFF who are learning important organizational development skills through Betty's leadership

7 BOARD MEMBERS with iLEAP director Britt Yamamoto and Japanese Ambassador Mr. Kazuo Minagawa as members

2 PARTNERSHIPS with Ugandan Organizations In Movement and Straight Talk Foundation

FUTURE HOPE:

To grow TEU and become a model organization for 100's more teenage empowerment programs in all of Uganda and to achieve sustainability.

I had no idea how much iLEAP would change me, inspire me, and allow me to grow in ways that I could not imagine. It was during my time in the iLEAP program that my passion to empower youth in my community really developed.

Through iLEAP, I became a member of a community of support and sharing that really helped me see what is possible.

After completing the iLEAP fellowship, I worked hard to apply for a grant money and founded Formación Fénix, a program for youth with a focus on education, environmentalism, and cultural preservation. I am from a town situated in a beautiful coastal area in the Rivas state. It is an area that, in recent years, has become very popular for international tourists. The development of luxury hotels and homes for foreigners created tension between community members, hotel managers, and tourists. Parents worried that the youth were losing traditional values when they were exposed to foreign influences. My objective is to work with the youth in our community to build pride in our traditional values, keep our town clean, and become aware of the opportunities a good education provides. I also wanted to ease tension between the community and hotel managers so I helped a negotiation in which one hotel agreed to build a new library in my town.

I am very proud of my community and I thank all of you who support iLEAP and make it possible for people like me to gain the reflection, knowledge, and network that leads to positive change.

HOMESTAY HOST VISITS iLEAP FELLOW IN "THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CITY IN THE WORLD"

In early June, Seattle University Professor and iLEAP Homestay Host Audrey Hudgins traveled to Honduras to visit Joany Garcia, the International Fellow she hosted in 2012.

Greetings!

June 9, 2013

I've just spent the last five days with Joany in San Pedro Sula—the most beautiful city in the world! Joany's family is wonderful and it has been great to get to know them all...and there's a lot of them! Her work is going well. She is working as an independent consultant now and recently gave a presentation to representatives of the World Bank connected with work she's doing to craft part of the policy on HIV/AIDS. This policy will be implemented by the new government after the election. Great stuff! She says that iLEAP helped her have the courage to take the leap into the consulting world after the organization she was working for lost a substantial portion of its funding.

I hope all is well in Seattle. Thanks for creating the iLEAP homestay experience. I wouldn't be where I am today without it!

Regards,
Audrey
